Split Senate panel OKs picks for Interior, EPA, chemical board

Annie Snider, E&E reporter

Published: Thursday, February 6, 2014

The Senate Environment and Public Works Committee swiftly advanced several key nominations today.

Sent to the floor in party-line votes: Rhea Suh to be Interior assistant secretary for fish and wildlife and parks, Ken Kopocis to be U.S. EPA assistant administrator for water, and Richard Engler to be a member of the Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board.

The panel also approved by a voice vote three other nominees: Victoria Wassmer to be EPA's chief financial officer, Thomas Burke to be EPA's assistant administrator for research and development, and Roy Williams to be assistant secretary of Commerce for economic development.

Republicans have lambasted Suh, who is currently Interior's assistant secretary for policy, management and budget, for her past work for a conservation foundation, as well as statements she has made questioning natural gas development in the West (E&E Daily, Feb. 5).

The panel's top Republican today reiterated those concerns.

"During her time at Interior, the department placed a moratorium on all energy development in the Gulf -- that was devastating to our economy -- pushed forward policies that were very inhibiting related to hydraulic fracturing, and other bad policy that I have real concerns with," Sen. David Vitter (R-La.) said during opening remarks.

Kopocis, who was originally nominated by President Obama for the top water post at EPA in 2011, saw his nomination advanced by the committee last year on a party-line vote but stall on the floor. He worked for years as a staffer in the Senate, including for the EPW Committee, and is widely respected. Republicans have held up his nomination, though, over concerns about several major regulations being crafted at the Office of Water, including one that is expected to expand federal authority over bogs, marshes, creeks and streams, and one that could create the first national requirements for stormwater management on private property (E&E Daily, Aug. 1, 2013).

Sen. Ben Cardin of Maryland, the top Democrat on the subpanel that handles water issues, this morning urged that the full chamber give Kopocis an up-or-down vote.

"The administration deserves to have a team in place, and here's a person we all know personally -- we know he's so competent," Cardin said. "I understand the politics of this institution, but I would hope that we can come together and get his nomination on the floor and do it in a cooperative way with an up-or-down vote."

The committee also approved a package of natural resource bills by voice vote (see related story).
